(Indian Movie) Full 1 hour 3 min.[Current diagnosis of monoclonal gammopathies of undetermined significance]. In recent years the general acceptance of the concept of monoclonal gammopathy of undetermined significance (MGUS) has had a profound impact on the diagnostic approach to this problem. Recently MGUS has been subdivided into low-grade (or smoldering) and high-grade (or active) forms. The latter are associated with an increased risk of transformation to multiple myeloma or lymphoproliferative disease. Although MGUS is defined as a premalignant condition, the diagnostic criteria cannot distinguish unequivocally between MGUS and a slowly progressive disorder. A correct diagnosis requires a long observation period. Thus, although screening for MGUS with bone marrow examinations can reduce the risk of developing multiple myeloma by 50%, there is still no evidence that early intervention can influence the natural history of MGUS. Treatment of patients with low-grade MGUS is still controversial. Until a prospective study of patients with MGUS shows unequivocally that treatment decreases the risk of progression to multiple myeloma or other lymphoproliferative disorders, no treatment is recommended.Q: Mapper throwing error when sending entity to transaction I have one entity A and a composite entity of A with a list of entities A. I have a mapper that can map A to A or A to A and A to A. But when I try to map A to A and A to A, I get an error as shown below: Exception in thread "main" org.hibernate.TransientObjectException: object references an unsaved transient instance - save the transient instance before flushing: com.example.entity.A -> com.example.entity.A As the id of A is same I think the problem is because of a sequence generator. What should I do? @Entity public class A implements Serializable { @Id private String id; @OneToMany(fetch = FetchType.EAGER, mappedBy = "a", cascade = CascadeType.ALL, orphanRemoval = true) private List listOfA; // getters and setters } public class CompositeA implements Serializable { 82157476af
